

"Art is not what you see, but what you make others see." -Degas

Join us to help make the La Llorona mural visible.

Through her paintings, artist and educator Juana Alicia seeks to create visions of hope by reflecting histories of both trouble and triumph. In the past twenty-five years, Juana Alicia has created over thirty murals and a large body of drawings, prints, paintings, mixed media and ceramics.

Juana Alicia is presently creating a new mural, entitled "La Llorona" ("The Weeping Woman") for the corner of York and 24th Streets, in the heart of San Francisco's Mission District. This was the site of her 1983 mural "Las Lechugueras."

The La Llorona mural seeks to educate viewers about the central importance of water in our lives and to celebrate the role that women play as caretakers of the environment.

To aid in the funding for the Llorona mural, TRENZA (a Chicana/Latina organization), is hosting a night of music, art, food, and drinks.

- Doors open 6pm-1am
- Strictly 21+
- Art raffles & silent auction-close @ 10pm
- Fully stocked bar
- Donations: $20 public/$15 students
- More info call 510-717-1585
- Check out TRENZA.org & JuanaAlicia.com

July 10, 2004
Mars Café
798 Brannan St.
San Francisco, CA